THE DISTRICT COURT.

Judge Rouse Cleared Up the Calendar Yesterday.

An Avalanche of Civil Cases Heard—Many Appeals Taken to the Supreme Court—Court Adjourned Yesterday.

Thursday morning Judge Rouse opened District court and ordered a special venire for fifty trial jurors, returnable Friday morning.

Friday morning the case of the Territory vs. R. E. Daggs, being the motion tried last week and resulting in a "hung" jury, was called. Defendant failed to put in an appearance; bail was declared forfeited and a bench warrant issued for his arrest. Attorney Glowner, counsel for Mr. Daggs, moved for a change of venue, and in support of the motion introduced three affidavits—one by Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Daggs, alleging that Judge Rouse was prejudiced against defendant; one by William Martin, who alleged that J. H. Hoskins had said in his (Martin's) presence that he (Hoskins) was paying the expenses of the court to have these (Daggs) cases heard; and one by G. W. Glowner, alleging that E. M. Doe stated to him (Glowner) that he (Doe) had provided transportation for Judge Rouse in coming up here to take Judge Bethune's place. Mr. Hoskins and

Mr. Doe submitted counter affidavits denying the allegations of Messrs. Glowner and Martin. The reading of these affidavits created a great deal of excitement and at its conclusion the court declared Attorney Glowner in contempt of court and sentenced him to 60 days in jail and to pay a fine of $100, and gave him until Saturday morning to either withdraw the affidavits of himself and Martin or suffer the sentence to be enforced. Saturday afternoon Mr. Glowner's case was postponed until Monday

Morning, when the attorney was called on by the court to state what conclusion he had come to. Mr. Glowner thereupon withdrew the two affidavits and the court set aside the contempt. Attorney Glowner then made a new motion for a change of venue on legal grounds, which was granted, the case being removed to Navajo county. Friday afternoon and Saturday was taken up by the court in procuring a jury and trying the case of the Arizona Central Bank vs. J. F. Daggs and wife, being an action of claim and delivery. The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiffs. Motion for new trial filed by defendants; denied by the court; notice given of appeal to the Supreme court.

Monday the case of J. F. Daggs vs. the Arizona Central Bank, for conversion of funds on deposit, was heard. Judge Rouse decided for defendants; motion made by plaintiff for new trial; denied by the court; notice given of appeal to the Supreme court.

Tuesday the court heard the case of M. E. Daggs vs. the Arizona Central Bank, and rendered a judgment for defendants. Motion for new trial filed by plaintiff and denied; notice given of an appeal to the Supreme court.

The Territory vs. William Martin, charged with illegal branding, was taken up in the afternoon, a jury impaneled and indictment dismissed without trial. Defendant, however, was held on present bonds to appear at next term of court.

The case of the First National Bank of Sturgis, S. D., vs. J. H. and A. P. Allen, suit on a promissory note, resulted in a judgment being found by the court for the plaintiff. Motion for new trial made by defendants and denied by the court; notice given of appeal.

Tuesday evening the civil suit of Neill B. Field, receiver of the First National Bank of Albuquerque, vs. J. F. Daggs was heard. Judgment rendered for plaintiff. Motion for a new trial filed by defendant and overruled; case appealed to the Supreme court.

The case of C. E. Boyce vs. Thomas H. Wagner came up yesterday morning. Court decided in favor of plaintiff. Motion for new trial filed and overruled; case appealed to the Supreme court.

Judge Rouse then adjourned court for this term.
